

TITLE: Population problem and development.

AUTHOR: Shandilya TK

SOURCE: New Delhi, India, Deep and Deep Publications, 1995. xvi, 171 p.

ABSTRACT: This is a collection of essays on aspects of India's population. The table of contents is as follows. Population problem: the case of India, by S. R. Grover and D. Madan. Population growth and sustainable development via productivity increases through human resource development, by Hilla M. Wadia. Population growth and family planning in India, by Bimal Singh. Population growth, economic development and environment, by S. Murty. Cost benefit and investment models of population change, by O. S. Srivastava. Energy consumption: whether a function of population or gross domestic product (a country group wise econometric study), by A. D. N. Bajpai. Fall-outs of family welfare programme in India, by Chaman Singh. Family welfare and mass communication, by Prahlad Kumar and Tapa Chakravarty. Regional structure of population and its linkages with development: an empirical analysis, by Amitabh Shukla. Population and environment by 2000 A.D.--a social manifesto, by G. Stanley J. Kumar. Population education in Indian universities: perspectives and prospects by S. N. Tiwary. Some salient features of the law of abortion in India: a close appraisal, by Tapan K. Shandilya.

YEAR: 1995